National Training Course in Thyroid Ultrasound and FNAC for Endocrinologists and Specialists in Thyroid Disease

Wednesday 5th December, 2012 – 09.00 am to 5.00 pm
The Royal College of Pathologists, 2 Carlton House Terrace,
London SW1Y 5AF

In response to the continuing demand we are running this course again on the 5th December 2012. The venue on this occasion will be The Royal College of Pathologists on the day following the 61st meeting of the British Thyroid Association.

This popular one-day course is an essential part of the national training scheme for certification in the use of ultrasound in the management of thyroid diseases by non-radiologists. The other essential components of the scheme, upon which guidance will be given, must be arranged locally.

The curriculum for training and certification for neck ultrasound by non-radiologists has been drawn up jointly by the British Thyroid Association and the Royal College of Radiologists. The programme is also supported by the Society for Endocrinology and approved by the Royal College of Physicians from whom CPD has been approved. The training programme is appropriate for established clinicians who manage thyroid diseases and thyroid cancer and SpRs.

The workshop includes the essential core knowledge to proceed to Level 1 certification and includes sessions on the theory, principles and practice of ultrasound and its application to the neck and thyroid examination and biopsy. As well as the appropriate theory content, the course will include practical hands-on sessions in neck ultrasound concentrating on the thyroid gland. There will also be a workshop on how to perform ultrasound guided fine needle aspiration cytology on the thyroid gland. The programme and details will be sent to successful applicants. Unsuccessful applicants may join the waiting list for the next course and will be given priority.

To apply please fill in the form on the following page.
